R.D. Musser, Jr. passes away at 80

We are saddened to relay that R.D. Musser, Jr, chairman of the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island, passed away this weekend. Musser, Jr. has become the president of the hotel in 1960 and was the driving force behind the expansion and improvements that brought the hotel its wide acclaim and landmark status. He was also an advocate for protecting the environment of Mackinac Island to ensure it will be enjoyed by natives and visitors alike long into the future.

The AIA Michigan has had a long and positive relationship with Musser Jr and the Grand Hotel and we offer his family and the community of Mackinac Island our deepest sympathy.

What Does AIA National Actually Do?

Not many of AIA National undertakings and activities are clearly communicated and filtered to the state and local levels, leaving component chapters to wonder what AIA National does with all the dues AIA National collects each year! In order to better communicate AIA National initiatives to our membership, we will feature a category from the 2012 Accomplishments publication AIA National released at AIA National Grassroots in March.

This week we are featuring the "Laying the Groundwork" category, which has two main focus areas:

Cities:

The AIA took a prominent role in highlighting the relationship between design and health with its Clinton Global Initiative commitment, "Decade of Design: The Global Urban Solutions Challenge." The ten-year commitment involves developing design and technology solutions for cities in the areas of public health, sustainability, and disaster resiliency. With our partners at the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture, the AIA's Decade of Design initiative funded research at three schools: Texas A&M University, the University of Arkansas, and the University of New Mexico.

Practice:

$100,000 Latrobe Prize, sponsored by the AIA College of Fellows, targeted "healthy design" to continue its 12-year history of funding research-based solutions to broaden the field of architecture.
