

Architecture firm seeking Preservation Architect

Licensed architect with a minimum of 15 years of experience in all aspects of historic preservation and architecture, from research and analysis to technical expertise in creating construction documents. Experience in preservation technology, working with the Secretary of the Interior's Standards, and historic preservation tax credits is required.

Interested individuals should be motivated, self-directed, and interested in being a part of a highly collaborative office setting. As a small firm engaged in a variety of project types, there is great opportunity for diverse challenges and growth. We welcome your energy, passion and unique point of view. This position would entail leading projects, mentoring staff and providing leadership in the office.

While we are based in Ann Arbor, the office has been operating virtually since March of 2020. Our collaborative culture has allowed this to work very successfully and this will be a key part of how we work moving forward. Interested individuals should not feel limited by their current location.

HopkinsBurns Design Studio is a practice dedicated to retaining and revitalizing our existing built resources – both cultural & environmental. Our work ranges from public buildings to residential projects in the practice areas of historic preservation and communities by design.
