

AIA Michigan Monday's Minutes

Cathy Mosley, Hon. Aff. AIAMI
Executive Director

May 20, 2013
Edition 5.3

Welcome to Spring!

I am looking forward to attending the Huron Valley Chapter's Spring Membership Meeting tomorrow. The meeting will not only involve a discussion of the Repositioning initiative, but proposed bylaws changes will be presented and the Chapter will discuss how to celebrate their 50th anniversary! Lots of positive things happening in Ann Arbor, so please join me if you are in the area!

Also, don't forget to register for the Educational Facilities Conference on June 17th! The event flyer is included below.

Sincerely,

Cathy Mosley, Hon. Aff. AIAMI
AIA Michigan Executive Director

What Does AIA National Actually Do?

Not many of AIA National undertakings and activities are clearly communicated and filtered to the state and local levels, leaving component chapters to wonder what AIA National does with all the dues AIA National collects each year! In order to better communicate AIA National initiatives to our membership, we will feature a category from the 2012 Accomplishments publication AIA National released at AIA National Grassroots in March.

This week we are featuring the "Building Community" category, which has six main focus areas under the umbrella topic of "Relationships":

Trust:

Placed a renewed special emphasis on building trust and stronger relationships between the AIA and all of the organizations comprising the design and construction industry, focusing on areas of mutual interest.

Communities:

The AIA led nine R/UDATs and SDATs in deserving communities, involving 57 architect-led teams and thousands of community participants, which created strategies for community revitalization and sustainability. The Institute also published 10 SDAT and

R/UDAT reports, totaling over 800 pages of analysis and recommendations.

Coverage:

A short documentary film about the AIA R/UDAT for the Birmingham, AL Tornado Disaster DAT, was highlighted at several national conferences. Working with over 50 communities, providing direct design assistance, process expertise and guidance, advice, and resources on a range of issues, almost 200 media hits highlighted AIA's leadership in rebuilding America, one community at a time.

Haiti:

The AIA announced a second Architecture for Humanity Sustainability Design Fellow in partnership with USGBC. Burtland Granvil, AIA, LEED AP, is working directly with community members on the ground in Architecture for Humanity's rebuilding center based in Port -Au- Prince, Haiti.

Corps of Engineers:

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the AIA renewed a partnership forged almost 20 years ago that promotes excellence in the design and construction of the country's public and civic buildings, facilities, and spaces and expands cultural diversity within the architectural profession to ensure the inclusion of a multitude of perspectives and voices in the design and construction process.

CACE:

The CACE Ambassadors program was launched in 2012, bringing an outstanding CACE representative to Washington for an immersion and familiarity with Institute affairs, in a program to augment and improve on the positive Institute Resource Training of new CACE representatives.
